VITRINE, Basel. Daily 24/7.

VITRINE is delighted to announce the solo exhibition of emerging Spanish artist Paula Santomé at VITRINE Basel.

Santomé works across sculpture, reliefs and drawing to explore youth culture through the lens of feminism and fringe models of resistance. She is interested in seeing what happens when people break free of dominant roles and forms of thinking to free inhibitions. This is contextualised through the artist's personal experiences growing up as a woman in today's society.

For her solo exhibition at VITRINE, Santomé has created contemporary interpretations of religious and mythological stories inspired by the representation of women in the Western canon of the second half of the 19th century; a period that Santomé considers to be a male reaction to the early women's suffragette movements and the first feminist wave.

Presented as part of the exhibition is a series of new hand embossed aluminium reliefs, inspired by pre-Raphaelite and Symbolist paintings that project a patriarchal view of evil creation through the female icon. 'Spes tva, carceris mei' (2023) depicts two women, one spitting into a box and another crouched down to touch a snake. The work is inspired by paintings by Dante Gabriel Rossetti and John William Waterhouse of the infamous story of Pandora's box. The myth tells of a box given to Prometheus' brother Epimetheus from the Gods for stealing fire from heaven which Pandora opens and releases sickness, death and suffering into the world.

A further work in this new series shows a fist with its thumb between its fingers and leaves branching from its forearm. Drawn from the tale of Daphne and Apollo, a story in which Apollo falls in love with a Daphne who is sworn to chastity. Apollo refuses to accept this so hunts her, but when he catches her she turns into a tree, sacrificing her body to avoid his sexual advances. In the work is a pre-Romanic, pagan symbol of the Iberian peninsula known as "La Higa", an amulet against the evil eye and a symbol of protection. Santomé reappropriates the female icons of mythology to convey male centric stories. She polarises these figures to become objects of resistance and feminine power.

Shown alongside the reliefs are a series of metal casts from her 'Toe to Toe' series which are intended as handheld objects for women to provide self protection; a deterrent of maliciousness to empower the holder and a tool towards emancipation.

Notes to Editor

1. Installation views of the show will be released on Thursday 16 November 2023.
2. VITRINE is focused on artistic experimentation and emerging interdisciplinary practices. The gallery was founded in Bermondsey, London in 2010, with a second space in Basel opened in 2016, a digital space launched in 2020 and a third space in London's Fitzrovia opened in Spring 2022. Over this decade, we have established a reputation as a selector and nurturer of new talent and our continued aim is to support artists' careers and the growth of their ideas.

Our programme is focused on interdisciplinary approaches in a variety of media, concentrating on artists working in installation, sculpture and performance. We are committed to support experimental practices that flourish site-responsively, in alternative environments to the traditional white cube, and are often underrepresented in the art market.

Our spaces are transparent: In Bermondsey, glass windows cover the entire 16-metre-long, panoramic space; In Basel, our space – custom designed by Swiss architects PanteraPantera - offers a 360 degree 'in-the-round' viewing experience. This transparent architecture allows all exhibitions to be viewable 24/7 from the surrounding public squares. Our Fitzrovia space is a more conventional gallery space. Glass remains a defining feature of the architecture, with windows flanking a ground floor exhibition space. All our spaces are wheelchair accessible. We further our programme through international satellite exhibitions, gallery collaborations and art fairs.

Our business model is a hybrid. We operate an expanding commercial gallery; representing a core group of artists and advising international clients. Our work in the public realm and commitment to supporting artists with ambitious experimental exhibitions has allowed us access to public funding, which we have carefully used over our 10-year history for specific large-scale non-profit projects.
